Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 08 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cloudy but milder today. Showers later.

Today:
Becoming mostly cloudy across the region by early morning, though probably remaining dry. Brighter spells developing into the afternoon, perhaps with the odd shower developing almost anywhere. Feeling much milder. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Tonight:
Becoming largely dry but increasingly cloudy this evening and overnight. A risk of rain arriving from the north by the very end of the night. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Friday:
A bright start across southern counties, but becoming cloudy for all on Friday as a band of rain edges slowly southwards through the day. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Cold and cloudy with a chance of wintry showers on Saturday and Sunday. Likely drier and milder into Monday, but with widespread overnight frosts likely.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.